HEBREW SECTION

It was another busy month for the section mainly as a result of Israel's involvement in Lebanon.

Although engaged in the first stage of the process of withdrawing from Lebanon, the IDF once again conducted bombing raids on suspected Palestinian terrorist bases in the Al-Biqa' Valley on 10 and 11 February.

The government also once again took most people by surprise by completing the IDF's withdrawal from the Sidon area 2 days ahead of schedule. The speed of the withdrawal was precipitated by the increasing number of attacks and casualties inflicted on the IDF. Even following the first phase of the three-stage withdrawal attacks on the IDF continued to grow, leading the government to institute harsher measures on villages and individuals believed to be involved in anti-IDF activities.

The Husayn-PLO accord and Mubarak's latest initiative generated a considerable volume of official and press reaction. Israeli political circles were skeptical about the accord, considering it a "tactical" move. Prime Minister Peres, in particular, did not see it as a peace proposal since it did not renounce terror or recognize Israel and suggested a "dictate" by one side, but he still reaffirmed willingness to carefully consider any peace proposal submitted by Husayn. The Mubarak initiative, calling for negotiations between Israel and a Jordanian-Palestinian delegation hosted by the United States or Egypt, was explained to Israeli officials in a series of secret and open meetings in Bucharest, where Peres was paying an official visit, in Cairo and in Jerusalem. Peres viewed the initiative as positive and worth examination, assuming the PLO was not part of the Palestinian delegation. Foreign Minister Shamir, however, basically rejected both the accord and the initiative.

Following a 1-week sampling of Jerusalem domestic television service in Arabic it was decided that this source did not merit regular coverage but the audio would be recorded daily in the event a later Hebrew source indicated that an interview meriting processing had been carried by this source.

TURKISH SECTION

The section filed a number of reports indicating Bulgaria's harrassment and oppression of its Turkish minority and a subsequent Turkish Government protest note to the Bulgarian Government which also proposed that the existing problems between the two countries be discussed at the foreign minister level to include a wide-ranging immigration agreement.

B. Communications

All parts for upgrading present system to 150 baud have been ordered.

Bench testing of RO's has begun and the rest of the equipment will be tested as parts become available.

The bureau will be receiving 5 comscribe printers originally destined for Nicosia Bureau.

C. Lateral Services

The Hebrew section translated for Ambassador Lewis 28 pages of the Moqed debate between 'Ezer Weizman and Moshe Arens on the weekly Moqed program.

The Hebrew section also translated for Ambassador Lewis remarks made by Allen Wallis carried by Jerusalem radio on the Israeli economy.

STAT Deputy Chief  met with Jerusalem Consulate political section on 28 February to discuss a possible cutback in the volume of copy they receive from FBIS. The communications section at the consulate requested relief until either a high-speed printer is installed or another port is obtained. It was decided that FBIS would cease filing to the consulate priority and immediate items on/from Lebanon and Iraq until further notice.
